

Want a job helping community to improve justice outcomes for mob?

Join the Barwon South West Community Correctional Services at the Department of Justice and Community Safety as an Aboriginal Professional Practice Adviser

This role is an Aboriginal designated full time position (fixed term, till 31 December 2026) based in the Geelong or Warrnambool Justice Service Centre. The salary range is $97,955 - $111,142 plus super and applications close 28 April 2026.

This role is about standing with mob and making sure Aboriginal people are supported properly when they're dealing with the justice system. It helps CCS staff understand culture and trauma, communicate better with mob, and work in a way that recognises the harm systems have caused, while keeping our people connected to family, community and culture. The role is there to help mob be heard, treated fairly, and supported to get back on track in a strong and respectful way.

What this role offers

- Support career growth and creating more opportunities for advancement
- Good salary and conditions
- Culturally safe and supportive workplace & environment
- Achieve outcomes for your mob and community

Find out more

Contact Liz Hill for a yarn about this job on 0487 315 362

You can also have an Aboriginal support person made available

